Even with a much sought-after scholarship under your belt, the barrister route is neither cheap nor simple. Staple Inn was never an Inn of Court, but was one of the Inns Of Chancery, and Richard will begin by discussing the difference between the two. The main exit – the one you want – goes out onto Kingsway.

The first order of new books was on 27 June and consisted of "a collection of London Gray's Inn does not possess a coat of arms as such, but instead uses a badge, often displayed on a shield, blazoned either " Azure an Indian Griffin proper segreant " [72] or, more currently, " Sable a griffin segreant or ", i. The Inn has had a Chaplain since at least where a court case is recorded as being brought by the "Chaplain of Greyes Inn". All Inns offer mootings at internal, inter-Inn or national level, and we fully also suggest that you bring some sort of identification with you – passport or driving licence etc – as these may be required to enter high security-risk trials. Although all four offer similar services and facilities, each maintains its own flavour and atmosphere, thanks in large part to their differing sizes.
