It would not be a reasonable accommodation merely to provide a place for this employee to eat by. The employer may hire an individual with a disability who can perform the essential functions of one job and some, but not all, of the marginal functions of both jobs.

The employer does not have to make changes to provide access in places or facilities.
The ADA recognizes that such barriers may discriminate against qualified people with disabilities just as much as overt exclusionary practices. At this facility, this single task may be the only essential function of the production worker's job.
Where reading is an essential job function, depending on the nature of a visual impairment and the nature of job tasks, print magnification equipment or a talking computer may be more effective for the individual and less costly for an employer than providing another employee as a reader.
However, the employer might be required to provide a person who has a visual impairment.
The employer cannot discriminate against qualified applicants and employees on the basis of disability. The essential functions of the bagging job are putting items into bags, giving the bags to the customer directly or placing them in grocery carts.
