After years, all that would be left would be aluminum dishwasher parts, stainless The World Without Us cookware, and plastic handles. While we are fully justified concerned about the impact we have on the planet, it's weather, life and environment, after we are gone, everything will be erased, and nature will repossess the planet.

Whatwouldhappentoallournuclearplants? I think that this is one that I will have to read again myself at some point, because I feel like it's one that I would need to really take The World Without Us time with, and absorb. The author gives quite a bit of information about what effect non-biodegradables will have on every thing from plant life to animal life remember, only humans have disappeared.

SelectedreadingforDrinksandDystopiaapostapocalypticbookclubfor6De he was left to see. It's actually playfully optimistic, and is more of a history and science lesson than a judgement on our sins.
